NASH TIMBERS OFFICE

THE NASH TIMBERS SELECT SYSTEM

A system that empowers you, my clients, to unravel the myths and mysteries of the timber world and mitigate the risks with regard to choosing the right timber. Our consultative approach is about developing the right solution for you, it's not about selling you some planks.

Species – to ensure you use the correct timber in the correct location

Environment – water and sun can live compatibly with timber

Locality – timber can live anywhere inside/outside as long as the correct technique is used

Economical – quality affordable timber

Colour – understanding the variation and ranges of colour in timber is your first step of decision making

Timing – timber lives, so it needs a timeframe allowing the raw product to be transformed to your desired finish

The Nash's have been working in the Timber Industry for many years; we decided there was an opening in Sydney to educate clients of the hidden value of Recycled Hardwood. Before opening Rozelle Recycled Building Centre (Renamed Ironwood) in 1993 recycled timber was left out in the open to weather and mainly used for shoring and landscape timber. We had a vision that if the timber was under cover and recycled floor joists were halved, a spectacular floorboard would be produced.

Over our ten years at Rozelle we watched the Recycled Floorboard grow from a waste product to a very unique classic product in popular demand.

During the last few years at Rozelle we watched the quality of recycled floorboard decrease day by day.

This changing trend made us revise our vision of selling timber.

Our aim is to sell quality timber to our clients at an affordable price, maintaining eco-sustainable timber.

Over the last eight years NASH TIMBERS has offered many clients a specialised and personalised approach to selecting any type of timber new or recycled, which includes flooring, decking, weatherboard, and stair case material and structural beams for residential and commercial applications.

NASH TIMBERS takes an holistic approach consulting with the client, architect, interior designer and builder to ensure the best timber product is provided.

With more than twenty years in the timber industry our passion and desire for timber continues to grow, as does our absolute unwavering desire for customer satisfaction. Myths and mysteries are well established in this industry and to make it easier and more understandable we have developed the Nash Timbers Select System
